PFLUGERVILLE — If you happen to watch HGTV's House Hunters tonight at 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. Friday, look for a familiar face. Eric Coburn, the Senior Telecommunications Administrator at Pflugerville ISD, was featured on House Hunters with his wife Allison and their two-year-old son Chance.

"We bought (our old) home in 1999 when my wife and I got married," Coburn said. "The small 1,200 square-foot-house was perfect for just the two of us. In 2005, Chance Coburn was born and that house seemed to shrink. The size issue was amplified when we would have guests stay. The new house is almost double the square footage."

The show involved four days of filming: one day at their old house, two days viewing potential houses and one day of the family in their new home.

"The process was a lot of fun. I suppose it was a once in a lifetime experience," Coburn said.

The couple was chosen for the TV show by their realtor Kenn Renner, who thought they would make perfect candidates for the show.

The TV show will feature one house at Falcon Point in Pflugerville, one at Teravista in Round Rock and one at Forest Oaks in Cedar Park. The couple moved into their new home in August, 2007.

"The house we chose is everything we are looking for and more. Our biggest goal in the home buying process was to find a bigger house," Coburn said.
