

"These are unprecedented times and public health is at stake as never before.

Because of this, at CENTURY21 Breeden Realtors we are doing as much business electronically as possible, avoiding face to face interactions until the ban is lifted.

Technology allows us to prepare listing contracts and even offers to purchase without meeting directly with clients.

When clients need to physically look at homes most of us will show homes only to pre-qualified buyers and take all necessary safety precautions (wear protective gloves and masks) and limit showings to no more than two people at once.

All of us at CENTURY21 Breeden Realtors fully believe when the ban is lifted there will be a pent up demand for homes that are ready to move in to.

Therefore, if you have been considering selling your home now is an ideal time to prepare your home and surroundings for sale.

Finally, as it is anticipated that the real estate market will return in full force once the ban is lifted, I invite you to contact me now if you are thinking of buying or selling a home so I will be ready to get to work with you right away.

As always, I continue to be available by phone 812.371.3215 (call or text) and by email at JBrinkman@C21BR.com to answer any of your questions or address any of your concerns." Jan
